My dear Sipeen,

May God bless you. I hear from father that you are appearing at

A.R.T.S Examination next week.

Father says that you are quite nervous over it.

Nothing is more powerful than one's will and self-confidence. Be confident and don't be nervous over any situation in life. Exam hall is only a hall where the candidates sit for the examination. The invigilators are not your enemies and you are the questions don't have a monstrous face.

Everything will be from your preparation.

Yes, it is true that some questions are twisted to test the analytical ability twisted to the test the analytical ability of the candidate. Read the question time and again and make sure that you understand them. Attend the questions that are easy for you first. Get through the difficult questions and try to solve it.

Attend as many questions as you can. Do. Don't be upset if you leave any question unattended. Most of the candidates do this. As for invigilators, they are meant to ensure a free and fair conduct of examination which most of you hope for. At the end I wish all the best for your examination.

✓ To convey my regards to father and mother care to Soni. with hope to see you soon I remain.

Yours loving brother
